ISO 27701 Certification is achieved by MoonPay

One of the top international standards for handling personal data is ISO 27701. It outlines precise procedures for safeguarding private information and guaranteeing responsibility. The establishment and management of a Privacy Information Management System (PIMS) is the primary subject of ISO 27701, an extension of the ISO 27001 information security standard. In compliance with international privacy laws, the framework helps companies collect, process, and protect Personally Identifiable Information (PII) responsibly.

Doug Innocenti, Chief Information Security Officer of MoonPay, stated, "Earning ISO 27701 demonstrates our continued commitment to increasing privacy and security across everything we do." "It demonstrates the maturity of our programs and the confidence our clients have in us, together with our ISO 27001 and ISO 27018 certifications."

Docenti Global Business School: Building trust through quality with the achievement of ISO 9001:2015

Docenti Global Business School has completed the initial audit for IAS-accredited ISO 9001:2015 for Quality Management System (QMS).

The scope of the management system includes the Provision of High-Quality Business Education and Professional Development Programs, Including Skill-Based Short Courses, Executive Education, and Undergraduate/Postgraduate Programs in Partnership with Global Universities.

ISO 9001 is thought of as a product standard; however, it is a process-oriented standard that focuses on streamlining various internal processes and procedures to eliminate errors and duplication of efforts. ISO 9001:2015 helps Docenti Global Business School adopt clear, consistent procedures for everything from designing courses and delivering them to providing feedback and conducting student assessment.
